Do synchronicities have meaning?

Pauls asks about synchronicities being a meaningful pointer. (12/9/94)

Paul: In everyday life, we quite often get coincidences happen and I always get quite excited when two things occur, apparently unrelated and yet there is some kind of connection. And I think they're like pointers, or beacons, that maybe you're on the right track sometimes. What can you say about coincidences?

Coincidences—what do I think?

Paul: Yeah, are they often pointers?

I would say to you, listen to that inner self. If you feel guided towards what these coincidences are pointing towards, then go forward and take heed. I know what you are speaking of. Many of you say life is fated, it was meant to be, meant to happen, such and such. It was a great coincidence, yes. Coincidences—many things in your life that happen have a mirror image. That is a coincidence. It is like if you look in the mirror, you see an image of yourself. And sometimes within your time, these coincidences, as you call them, happen. It is like a mirror happening. Can you understand that? Am I making sense?

Paul: Mmm, I think so, yes.

Les: Say if you're not satisfied Paul. Salumet would rather that you were—

George: Some of these coincidences may relate to your power of thought—you think of a friend and that friend appears the next day.

That, my friend, is exactly what I say when I speak of thought. Your power of thought can create so much, it can. It also can create what you want to happen. And sometimes with coincidences, it is because the thought has travelled. Can you see? It is not an easy thing to explain to you.

George: One of our scientists, Carl Jung, called it 'synchronicity,' that rather special coincidence, through power of thought.

It is another name for it, yes. If you are happy to use that name, then so be it; that is fine by me.

Les: What is difficult to establish, is whether your thought is producing your friend, or your friend's thought has targeted you, to let you know he's coming.

George: Yes, I've had some lovely coincidences in my life like that.

And do not forget that your thoughts rebound. That too, can be a reason for coincidences. It is the thought that rebounds and creates the mirror image. That is what I am trying to say.

Les: And I have personally never been able to decide, whether a coincidence is such, or whether it is spiritual impression.

It is both, actually. It can be both.

Synchronicity is a way that spirit can help maintain interest when our poor memories fail us

Salumet also discusses how thinking can change the odds in gambling. This is not a healthy pursuit as one man's gain will be another's loss. We are also reminded that the power of thought can create much in our lives and that we must take responsibility for resulting outcomes. (24/5/04)

George: Could I ask a question about synchronicity, that we've talked about I know, but some further clarification might be possible at this stage. We talk of chance—that really links to mathematics and probability, as for example, throwing dice and there is a particular calculable chance of a particular number coming up on the die. Now I think I'd be right in assuming that what we call synchronicity always has its Spirit connection and even the numbers on dice could be influenced from Spirit, but not usually.

Yes, I understand your question, but let me put this simply for you: remember the power of thought? Do you not know those individuals whom some would term 'lucky'. Can you not see?

George: Yes, so good gambler can work the odds through his power of thought?

Yes. He may not be aware that that is what he is doing, but the mind can make many things happen, but it is the power, the force behind the thought that creates the reality. Always my dear friends we return to these same issues. All of life seems so simple to us in our world, but I have to say that you human beings complicate what is so simple. You use so many words when one would suffice.

George: Yes. The extraordinary synchronicities that come to us from Spirit, they would also connect with power of thought, I'd imagine?

I feel that we should differentiate just a little my dear friend. When you speak of dice and men who use these things to gamble, they of course have the freewill to use the power of their thought. When you speak of the mind and synchronicity connected to Spirit, we are speaking on a different level.

George: Yes. Could I give an example? We had the channelling in Inca language, which I understand is 'Quechua'. We are in touch with an Inca language expert and we are waiting to hear back from him. But in the meantime I received a postcard of Machu Picchu in Peru from an acquaintance—not a close friend, more an acquaintance, who was declaring that he had just completed the Inca trail. Now, it seems to me an example of an extraordinary synchronicity.

Yes. It is our way of saying to you that this—and I use your word ‘trail’ that you must follow up on, and we will help to supply all of these things to keep your interest.

George: Yes, I’ll accept that entirely. I’ve had a number of such synchronicities and I’ve always had the feeling that they mean that we are on the right course. (Yes)

Sara: It’s a sort of encouragement.

Yes. You might say as the human might be interfering in some way—that is our way from Spirit, to keep your interest going, to have all of these what you call ‘co-incidences’ when in fact they are placed before you, to keep the memory going, because we know how forgetful you can be. (Chuckles)

George: So that form of synchronicity would always come from those in Spirit?

Yes, that’s why I said we must make some differentiation between actions. The one who wishes to gamble is using freewill to use the power of his thought.

George: But if we are throwing dice and not particularly thinking about it or wishing for a particular number, then the laws of mathematics will apply? (Yes) That’s clarified things beautifully for me, thank you!

Yes, you must accept all of these things—you inhabit a human earthly plane, where all of earthly things apply, and of course we would not encourage any human being to gamble, when it can affect so many others in their lives. You understand?

George: Yes, what is a win for one is a loss for someone else.

Yes, you must again always look for the fuller picture. You understand? (Yes)

Sarah: That’s also the balance, isn’t it?

Yes, yes, but some human beings become so self-centred that they cannot see further than their ego.

George: That is a wonderful clarification. Thank you for that.

Sarah: Somebody who’s very interested in this work and who I give all the transcripts to, he was telling me the other day that as a young man he had a personality and then he had a very bad accident and had a major operation. After the operation he became a different man—he was more aggressive and not willing to toe the line. Is this part of his freewill, or is this—I know you can’t generalize with all things, but can you in your life suddenly decide that maybe you’re not on the right course and you need to change, or is it just an accident—although you’re going to tell me that accidents don’t happen!

Yes, we will not talk of accidents. The laws are perfect and no matter how you define spiritual law, I can tell you dear friends that all are perfect. Do not forget what you decide before you come into these bodies. It may be that this gentleman decided that this would be the life—change of life that would suit him best for his own progress. So, the opportunity came when he had to have the medical operation that would create the change within the physical body. You understand?

Sarah: Yes I do, thank you.

But of course, as you full well know my dear friends, the power of your thoughts can create much within your lives and you have to accept responsibility for all thoughts that you create, and I am sure by now you fully understand that some thoughts are more powerful than others. (Affirmed) You have to have the recognition of the power of your thinking. Each one of you my dear friends—and I have said this many times to you before, you create your own reality. No one else is responsible for your thinking. Never blame another for the thoughts that you have as an individual. So again, I bring you to thinking about your thoughts.

Synchronicities are also sent to make us think

George starts with an amusing story which describes an event with probably less than a billion to one chance of happening. But it did! (3/4/06)

George: Could I mention two synchronicities that I've come across? The singer, Gracie Fields, was on the deck of The Queen Mary, on one occasion, with her music director, when he dropped his spectacles over the side of the boat. He couldn't see to work without them. Later they went down to the ship's shop to see if they might have something that would help. On the way they passed a notice that referred to a pair of spectacles that had been found. They were rather surprised but went along to enquire, and they were indeed the music director's spectacles that had been found. It seems that, at the time when he dropped them, someone in a cabin below put his hand out of the porthole to see if it was raining and they dropped into it. So that is rather a nice synchronicity and the music director was able to continue his work. (Chuckles)

I am pleased to hear the laughter from you, but all too often do these, what you call 'synchronicities', these happenings should not surprise you, because have you not learned by now that you are watched over, safeguarded so often throughout your physical lives, (Agreed) and this is a case in hand of probably his own angel taking care of him for some particular good reason.

George: Yes, that feels right.

But you see, these stories are sent for people to stop and to think.

George: The second one I was going to mention was quite different. It was about a ship that sank in the Menai Straights and of about 70 people, there was just one single survivor. His name was Hugh Williams. That was in the 17th century. During the 18th century, there was a similar happening: there was just one survivor from a ship that sank and the name was also Hugh Williams. And during the 19th century, exactly the same thing happened again with one survivor—Hugh Williams! So that one is rather strange and I haven't been able to think of a reason, but you've just given me one actually. (Yes.) I was going to ask you if you could tell us more of the nature of synchronicity.

It is meant to make you think. That's why, all of what you call mystical happenings, occur. It is not to make you go 'Awe!' like so many do, but it is for the spirit to come forward and to analyse all of these happenings, to be reminded in one sense of what they can accomplish whilst clothed here in these bodies upon this planet.

Paul: That's an excellent demonstration that the universe is not governed by chance events. That is true, but be careful that you do not always assume that any happening is from our world; there are sometimes within your world, happenings which are created by the physical side, by the human nature. So do not always say: this is a mystical happening—be aware that there has to be some balance. Do you understand my words? (Affirmed)

George: I have a picture that the true synchronicity might be seen as the interaction between the two universes, (Yes—always.) and this would be a guided interaction. Yes, of course. Anything in your world, such as you mention, always has a purpose. It may not be obvious to you at the time, but in hindsight, most people see the common denominator and all becomes clear.

George: And it might be simply to start us thinking...

Most definitely—as do all events, which happen in your world; from the time you are born till the time you are reborn—all events within your life are usually there for some good purpose, for some reason and that is why, and I will take your example of one survivor of many, that I may add that that one survivor had a continuing purpose throughout his life and therefore he would have been saved for that purpose. I hope that is clear to you.

George: Yes. Thank you very much.

Salumet attempts to explain the difficult concepts involved in the orchestration of synchronicity

George requested from a previous meeting that the orchestration of synchronicity was discussed. The explanation is best read in Salumet's words. (25/9/06)

I am sure that you remember my words of last time, when it was put to me that we may speak on particular subjects and our dear gentleman friend asked that we might discuss 'synchronicity'.

George: Yes.

Yes. I am of course happy to have discourse upon this subject, so do you have a particular question for me?

George: Well, I do have a question as it happens. I've been in correspondence with Elaine, whose husband John passed to spirit last year. And before he passed, Michael from New Zealand telephoned, and Elaine asked Michael if he would like John to try to contact him after passing, and Michael said he would very much like that. More recently, Elaine wrote a letter to Michael recalling that moment. And within about an hour of writing, Michael booted his computer, which was malfunctioning, and written across the screen was: I AM NOT DEAD. Because it was malfunctioning, he re-booted and again the message on the screen: I AM NOT DEAD. There is a rational explanation for the origin of the words, which were part of a music album advertisement. But the timing was amazing and Elaine asked me to see if you have any comment on that and what was in her mind, I know is: would John have had any part in that apparent synchronicity?

I understand your question—thank you. Firstly let me say: do you remember my past words to you that communications from our world were altering, and that much more use would be made by electrical gadgets?

George: Yes, I recall your words.

Yes. That is my first statement to you. What better way to make contact with a loved one or an associate than to use the energy of that electricity. (Yes.) So I say this to you now, that of course, what you call 'synchronicity' was in fact, straightforward communication from our world.

George: Yes—thank you.

What I term synchronicity is just very slightly different. (Yes.) Of course, these are the words you would be expecting from me, because you see, to simplify, 'synchronicity'—and remember again, these are Earthly words—synchronicity in the true sense proves that there is a parallel world. (Yes.) Yes, I know that you understand this, my dear friend, but not all within this room would understand so clearly.

George: Some of us like to think of it as two universes, (Yes.) the physical and the spiritual, and at times there would be a particular connection or signal—I'm not quite sure how to describe it.

Let me again say to you words I have used many times, and that is: 'energy', energy to which you all come from and belong to—and you know full well my dear friends, that even within your world, your scientists now know how to what they term 'split atoms', which of course is energy. (Yes) So, why is it so surprising to those of you who know and understand our world that these energies, which have always been—and again, I repeat myself in saying that there is no past/present/future, but just 'is'. But energy can be transmuted in many ways, and a 'true synchronization,' as I would explain it to you, is when two parts of energy from the same source, re-unite in some form or another.

George: 'Re-unite'—yes.

Does that make sense to you?

George: Yes—thank you.

It shows itself in a pattern of separateness when in fact it has always been joined together.

George: Yes, and we've probably got a peculiar idea about: 'has always been'. (Yes.) When you say that past, present and future, are one...

This is why, my dear friends, it will always be difficult for you to truly understand the explanations for these things, because you have not in this lifetime, experienced that separateness, or that rejoining of energy.

George: Yes, I suspect the phrase: 'has always been' is a phrase to aid our understanding as it stands at present, but...

Yes, but it is difficult...

George: But if that time is all one, then it's not quite to that meaning... I find it difficult to express myself.

As you do...so do I.

(Chuckles)

Always this is the problem.

George: Yes, we appreciate you're endeavouring to express yourself in our terms that we will understand.

To explain to you in simple terms of understanding, brings to it a few problems, but always I endeavour to take the simple pathway for your own understanding.

George: Yes, that is appreciated. Thank you.

And as always, and as you well know, as time continues, that understanding becomes a little fuller as time continues forward, and what was once most confusing, suddenly becomes quite clear. And I do feel that this subject is a little beyond your understanding and capability of understanding at this time.

George: Yes, but it has helped enormously and I imagine that as Elaine's story is of a direct communication, I imagine that John might well have had some part in that?

The one you call John would have been aware of the thoughts and the emotions of his loved one.

George: Yes, I have further details that make that clear—very clear.

Yes and that is how from our world, we are prepared and ready for all of these occasions.

George: Thank you, and I know that they were a devoted couple—very close.

Yes, which helps in the communication, of course.

George: Yes, and I shall communicate this transcript to Elaine, and I know that she will be most pleased to receive (Yes.) your words on that.

I would like to mention, perhaps another example of true synchronicity, as I view it. We have spoken about how the spirit can be far away in another place, speaking to another person, while the physical body is somewhere else and occupied. That is an example of separateness although belonging together. Do you understand my meaning?

George: Separateness in the sense that the mind...

The energy can separate, but comes together.

George: Is separate from the material body. (Yes.)

George: Yes, I see. Thank you.

I feel I have to say to you, that all of your lives—all of your physical lives must be associated with synchronicity, otherwise we would not exist as we do. It is the natural laws of life and existence.

George: I think you're saying that it happens all the time, (Yes.) but we just are particularly noticing those special examples.

Yes. Once the awareness and knowledge come to the forefront, then you say: Ah! What is this! When, in fact, you are surrounded each day by such happenings.

Sara: Yes, I've noticed that names and birth dates are very often—well think of them as synchronistic. But I think that the dealings that you have with others, whether they are difficult or easy, I feel that these connectors that make you more aware of the links between you and others, I just think they make you look more closely, and I think about past connections, (Yes.) other connections from other lives, which have either caused it to be easy or difficult.

But do not forget, my dear friend, that there are those who stand close by—your helpers, your guardian angels—all people in our world who stand close to help you in all matters; and in one sense, this influence comes from them. They also have a hand in these everyday happenings. You understand?

Sara: Yes I do. They are very much meant to happen... (Yes.) I do see that and obviously the difficult links are simply to be worked through and understood...

You must, as a whole, accept what life brings to you. But you must not exclude the help that is available to you, because there is so much help available, there is so much love to be given to you, from loved ones in our world. But as always, your responsibility lies with your selves, but perhaps, after this discussion, you will look at happenings and events with new eyes.

Sara: Yes I'm sure.

With—I repeat myself so often—with your spiritual eyes. And then you will see your understanding grows much, when this is done.

Sara: Yes, I see.

Have you any more questions on this subject?

Jan: When somebody is in a coma and their spirit leaves that body well before the actual physical heart stops beating, is that similar to what you were talking about—the synchronicity of the spirit being in one place...

Yes, it is, yes—an example—yes, it is the separateness of the same energy. But in the case you are speaking of, there is connection until that cord is severed, and spirit is free—you cannot put apart physical happenings and spiritual happenings.

Jan: I guess they're one anyway.

Yes. Again, what has been has always been.

(Lilian then asked if anyone else had more questions)

Graham: Last week I was finding my teaching rather hard-going. I work with children who have special educational needs. I was finding it all a bit much, towards the end of last week and I asked for help and the difference was amazing! I knew I was surrounded by love and friends and helpers, because suddenly it all seemed so much more manageable and less difficult than it had done before. It was a very powerful example of what we are surrounded by and again, the link between the physical world and the spiritual world.

Yes—I would like to comment just a little on the word ‘link’.

(At this point Jan began to experience some profound form of healing, which Salumet soon responds to)

You, my dear friends, are first and foremost spirit. You cannot ‘link’, because you already ARE. So, when you say ‘link’, what you mean is that you are allowing that spiritual part of you to (Salumet’s delivery slows, probably reacting to Jan’s ongoing experience) be up—that spiritual part of you...

Forgive me my dear friends, for this interruption, but there is much intensity within this room this time. And just for a short time, I ask that each of you feels that love and energy, which is present at this time. Please attend dear lady (Lilian) for this one. *(Jan)

Lilian: Do you wish to speak?

Jan: Just pass that feeling around.

(Sara visited each in turn and Jan then gave thanks for her experience.)

When you feel such intensity of spirit, you begin to understand my words, ‘Past, Present, Future are as one.’ And you will find on these occasions that sometimes the emotional body finds difficulty in containing itself. But I would say to you this: That in times such as these, to allow them forward. It is different from physical human emotions that most of you suffer from. This intensity of emotion brings with it knowledge and an experience of love, which you may not have in your everyday lives. And I feel that on these words, my dear friends, I will leave you to continue with whatever is here for you. *(Thanks expressed)

George: A wonderful evening—and that is an understatement.

I will be most interested next time to see what kind of reactions you feel from this evening. As always, my dear friends, I bathe you in love from that Great Creative Force to which we all belong.
